Arkansas Arts Center Participating in International Museum Day 2010

(LITTLE ROCK, AR) – The Arkansas Arts Center will be participating in International Museum Day on May 18, 2010.

International Museum Day is organized annually around the world by the International Council of Museums and focuses attention on the important roles that art museums serve in their communities. In addition, it further showcases their remarkable collections, and increases opportunities for audiences to engage with the many educational programs art museums offer. The Arkansas Arts Center will join more than 60 other museums from the United States, Canada and Mexico in this annual acknowledgement of the significance of museums.

The Arkansas Arts Center will offer a discount on International Museum Day. All tickets to World of the Pharaohs: Treasures of Egypt Revealed will be $14. “We are pleased to participate in International Museum Day,” said Joseph Lampo, Interim

Director of the Arkansas Arts Center. “Museums provide a public service and are important to understanding culture, and in our case the visual arts, in their communities. Visitors regularly appreciate our special exhibitions and our permanent collections and we especially look forward to welcoming them on May 18.”
